Coup d'état is a fitting title for your work.

It is no accident
that those on the Winds of Success
were "terminated with extreme prejudice".

The articles in Computers and Automation
have shown no dearth
of courage.

Unfortunately, they abound in error and
"fantastic" allegations (The "Confession" of James Hicks)
so that the entire credibility is destroyed
to an objective reader.

Sincerely,

Edward R. Williams

Dear Harold,

Please keep the
chapter from Dark Star.
It does provide an interesting (if perhaps irrelevant)
correlation with later events.

By coincidence, Hess,
while writing his
biography of Eatherly,

The Hiroshima Pilot, conducted his research of Claude's life in New Orleans with the aid of William Gurvich.

Re the assassination of R.F.K., I sent you under separate cover The Billion Caviar, a novel by T.C. Lewellen.

A well written but melodramatic novel, its treatment of hypnotism (see page 140) leaves the book above the level of the genre.

I discussed the possibility of this form of mental programming with a psychiatrist and was told that it fell within the bounds of current research.
